Union Pacific to Co-Operate With Central

Ruling of Court May Not Effect R. R. Policy

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—Fred G. Athearn, of San Francisco, western counsel for the Union Pacific, stated that the Supreme Court's denial of the application for a rehearing would have no effect upon the policy of the Union Pacific heretofore announced regarding the separation of the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific.

"The Union Pacific has repeatedly stated," he said, "that its first interest is an independent Central Pacific for its connection at Ogden, so it can co-operate without harmful and prejudicial restraints with the Union Pacific in providing a high grade transportation service across the continent, in competition with other routes, and in aiding the development of California."

Good Speaker in Town

Ben. F. Wilson, father of Stitt, spoke at the labor temple last night, his subject being "The World Crisis and the Way Out." Tonight he speaks at Lincoln school.

BETTER THAN ARMED GUARDS

Experiments seem to show that Airedale dogs make excellent watchmen for Mexican mines.

It has been found that trained Airedale dogs are better watchmen for mines in the bandit-ridden parts of Mexico than armed guards. For this reason a number of mines have already replaced men with dogs. Recently eight registered Airedales were purchased in El Paso and have been shipped to Sinaloa, to be used as guards for the mine of Dr. J. W. Yard and C. W. Hatke, situated near there. The experiment of using this breed of dogs in mining camps to give warning of the approach of brigands was adopted several months ago at Topia, state of Durango, it is stated. Harrison Trolbert, an American mining man of that camp, imported four Airedales, which he turned loose in the camp. It is asserted that in a few days' time the animals had been trained to rouse the community with their barking when a stranger approached the settlement. At night they are particularly vigilant in giving the alarm, no matter how stealthily any person may seek to enter or move about the camp. At Cusiuhirichic, state of Chihuahua, P. B. Holmes, a well-known mine owner, lays great store by an Airedale, which has done guard duty at the mine for several weeks.

PRACTICAL THRIFT

Mrs. Penny Newman, who has died at her home in West Norfolk, England, was a model of a thrifty housewife. When she married forty years ago she declared that she would not be satisfied until she had lived in a house of her own. She began to hoard up her odd pennies, and at the end of twenty-five years she was able to give her husband the surprise of his life by buying a house standing in an acre of ground by the River Ouse.

Tenth Street Widening

The report of the commissioners on the widening of Tenth street has been filed and protests will be heard by the city council in the near future.

They Would Attack the Blue Sky Law

Sacramento, Oct. 13.—It is stated that a group of Southern California oil promoters have banded together to finance an attack on the Corporate Securities Act. Two months ago there were 104 of these "out-law" oil companies, operating without permits in this state, the majority of these concerns being hopelessly over-capitalized. The investing public is warned against these fraudulent companies. Before parting with your money and saying goodbye to it forever, seek advice from honest, competent business men, your banker preferred. Safety first.

No Substitute Has Been Found For Gas

Use of gas has grown in our country from 92,714,667,000 feet in 1902 to 319,887,613,000 feet in 1920.

These facts fully refute the statement in the Babson reports that "gas companies have probably seen their best days."

Gas is being used more extensively than ever before for industrial purposes.

It fills a certain field for which no substitute has yet been found.

QUAINT METHOD OF HUNTING

Chinaman Uses Simple but Remarkably Effective Device When He Goes After Wild Ducks.

So far as we know, nobody really catches birds by putting salt on their tails; but this method adopted in some parts of the world are almost as quaint.

In certain parts of China a number of pumpkins are left floating on the surface of any pond frequented by wild ducks, in order that the latter may come to regard them as harmless objects.

When the Chinaman wants a duck for his lunch he slips quietly into the pond and places over his head a pumpkin in which slits are cut for his eyes. He then moves gently through the water until he is near enough to catch a duck by the feet. With a sharp jerk he pulls it under the water, wrings its neck, and puts it into his belt. The other ducks are seldom disturbed, and he goes on until he has caught all he wants.

RADIUM IN THE SIMPLON

One of the most interesting scientific discoveries connected with the Simplon tunnel is the existence in the rocks through which the famous tunnel was bored of a surprisingly large amount of radium. The greatest percentage was found more than two and a half miles from the Italian entrance, where every gram of rock contained about one four-thousand-millionth of a gram of radium. The presence of such a quantity of radium is thought by some to furnish an explanation of the extraordinary degree of heat encountered in the tunnel.

NEW YORK'S TELEPHONES

The number of telephones in New York city has passed the million mark. There may still be some question as to whether New York or London is the largest city in the world in point of population, but there can be no argument so far as telephones are concerned, for New York has nearly three times as many as London.

Santa Fe Receives a F. E. Hilton, Pioneer, Big Divvy From Government

Raids Continue At County Line

Deputy Sheriff J. W. Smiley of Richmond, assisted by Constable George Conlon and a number of citizens of El Cerrito, raided a Chinese gambling place near the county line Sunday, capturing 3 Chinese and 11 whites, together with a quantity of lottery tickets and gambling devices.

They were all taken to the Martinez and jailed, and were charged with gambling and vagrancy.

A Lucky Plunge

An automobile driven by a San Pablo man went over the grade and into the bay at Cozy Cove Sunday. The driver jumped clear and escaped uninjured. The car was wrecked.

FINED FOR CONFIDENCE GAME

Enterprising South African Went a Little Too Far in Dealing to Turn Honest Penny.

A queer story has reached London from South Africa. A resident of Cape Province, Frederick de Beer, was charged with fraud and the desertion of a grave, put on trial, and acquitted of the first crime but convicted of the second.

As the tale is told, it seems that a group of nationalists in the province had offered a reward for the bones of Commandant Sheepers, a man who was executed by the English during the Boer war for committing an act that to the Boers was heroic, not criminal. This reward the too-enterprising De Beer determined to get, and, for some reason not stated in the account at hand, he went to the Dutch Reformed cemetery, dug up the bones of his own father and passed them off, or tried to, as those of the martyred Sheepers.

Could he have had some vague idea that the remains of his father belonged to himself, and he had a right to do with them what he would, while by disturbing some other grave he would have committed another and a greater crime? However that may be, his act evidently did not excite general condemnation, for somebody who is described as a "sympathizer" paid for him the $75 which was imposed as the alternative of three months in prison.

Charged With Bootlegging

The trial of Bill Waldorf and Paul Beebe of the Western Hotel is being held today. They are charged with violating the city prohibition ordinance.

Fred E. Hilton, Richmond pioneer and native of Missouri, was found dead in bed in his room over his barbershop at 1614 Macdonald avenue, Monday evening by Policeman Charles Manke and C. E. Fisher, the latter a neighbor and intimate friend of Hilton's. A gas tube, which had been disconnected, was found under the bedclothes, and the room was tightly closed.

It is believed Hilton had been dead several days. A hastily written note was found, stating that he wished his personal property left to Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fisher, who were his nearest friends.

Hilton was one of the first saloonkeepers of Richmond, and conducted a place at the Point when Richmond was a hamlet.

PLANTS SHOW ORE DEPOSITS

Fact Has Long Been Known That They Reveal Different Kinds of Underground Minerals.

It has been known for a long time that certain plants indicate the presence of minerals underground. In the proceedings of the Australian Mining Institute, E. Lidgey has summarized several remarkable examples where beds of ore were revealed by plants growing on the surface above, says the Scientific American. The Amorphia caespitosa shrub indicates the presence of galena, the lead sulfide ore, in Michigan and Wisconsin, while in Missouri a plant belonging to the poison sunnatch family serves the same purpose, as a lead ore indicator. These facts indicate that these stone beds are to be found in the neighborhood.

In Spain a sort of bindweed, known as convolvulus althoides, is deemed of high value in betraying the presence of underlying deposits of phosphate ore. The plant erigonum ovalifolium discloses the existence of silver ores in Montana. The calamine violet, which grows in Upper Silesia, Westphalia and Belgium, is a sign of the existence of calamine, the zinc ore, in the neighborhood.

Near the city of Siegen in Westphalia the presence of iron ore deposits over a considerable acreage is indicated by the fact that the surface of the earth is covered with birch trees, while the ground surrounding this section on all sides bears only oak and beech trees.

Didn't Know His Daddy

"Who's the stranger, mother dear? Look, he knows us; ain't he queer?" "Hush, my own; don't talk so wild. He's your father, dearest child." "He's my father? No such thing! Father passed away last spring." "Father didn't die, you dabb! Father joined a golfing club. But they closed the club, so he has no place to go, you see—No place left for him to roam—That is why he's coming home. Kiss him, he won't bite you, child—All the golfing guys look wild." —Inky Dick.

Muscovy ducks are becoming popular in Albany. Unlike the goat, muscovy ducks are noiseless—they never speak. If a muscovy becomes thirsty or hungry, he uses the sign language. It is impossible to upset a muscovy duck, after he is three months old, on account of the expansion of his feet, which assume the proportions of large pancakes. The meat of the muscovy is white and tender and is much sought for by the Chinese, who are connoisseurs on ducks.

After the Bootleg Vote

No sounding phrases can change the meaning of Woolwine's announcement that he is not a candidate of the liquor interest—but if elected he would veto the act to enforce the Eighteenth amendment. Woolwine would slip into the governor's chair via the bootleg vote. The bootleg profits running into millions, are imperiled by the passage of acts that would give courts, prosecutors and police of the state power to strike at its illicit business.

Woolwine is the bootlegger's candidate, and his statements when stripped of their rhetoric plainly expose the bootleg plank in his platform. The people of California are going to uphold the constitution the same as 46 out of the 48 states, wet and dry, are now doing.

The strike of the railroad shopmen has provided one impressive lesson in favor of arbitration, which should be heeded in future labor controversies. If the men had remained at work and fought out their claims through arbitration, they would have retained their seniority rights and privileges.

There were 550 industrial deaths in California in 1921 and 1643 permanent injuries. These figures are no doubt startling, but when we consider that 123,336 were only temporarily injured, according to Chairman Will J. French's report, we got off lucky at that.

Thomas Nast, the famous cartoonist for Harper's Weekly in the 60's and 70's, is father of the elephant emblem of the republican party which was first used in the campaign of Nov. 7, 1872. Nast, at the same time, originated the donkey as the democratic emblem.

Addresses were made by a number of Contra Costaans, Richmond being represented by some of her best citizens, who stand for the man who has proved his worth to the county, not only as a peace officer, but one who has done much in diverse ways of publicity and in advertising the county's resources to the outside world.

BLACK IS UNLUCKY

By ALICE DAVENPORT

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Bob was known far and wide as a model husband; steady as the rock of Gibraltar. As steady as he was, at times he was in despair. Letty, his wife, was a veritable gadabout.

Bob remonstrated in vain. Letty would dissolve into tears—a way she had; but when her tears dried she was on the trot again with her cronies. Coming down on the 5:15, Bob ran across Charley, the latest victim of matrimony. Poor Charley was in the throes of indigestion.

"If Grace could only learn to cook," moaned Charley. "But you can't sympathize. Letty is such a peach at that sort of thing."

"Yes, she is," admitted Bob; "but what would you do if your wife insisted on going out every night?"

"I'd beat her to it," Charley assured him.

"There is only one thing for you to do, Bob," Charley told him. "There is an old superstition that says if you want to keep a cat you must butter her feet. Apply that to Letty."

Now, Bob had a deep vein of superstition, although he would have died rather than admit it. If he could butter Letty's feet—let her go—he would try it and see how it worked.

Letty met him at the door, bubbling over, as usual. She served the delicious dinner and enjoyed watching him eat. As soon as he had finished his hearty meal and she had eaten like a bird, she drew him into the cozy living room.

"I have a secret for you, Bob," her eyes dancing. "I am going to stay at home tonight, all alone with you."

"Letty, are you sick?" Bob was really anxious.

"Don't rub it in now, honey, or I'll change my mind."

She was in her most charming mood. She sang his favorite songs, she played his favorite selections; she made harmless drinks—delicious all the more because they were harmless.

"Why can't it be like this all the time, Letty?" he asked her. "Could anything be better than this?" Now Letty could have been disagreeable and replied in return.

"No, nothing could be nicer for you, but what about me? I have done the cooking, the entertaining, the talking, and I am almost exhausted. I have given and you have taken."

"My dear boy," she smiled in her enchanting way, "you enjoy this because it is so rare. If we had a night like this every night in the week you would soon tire of the monotony. You haven't even read your sporting news, Bob. I must have charmed you, surely. I'm going to break the record tonight and go to bed early."

She went through her retiring routine more quickly than usual. Bob did the nightly chores; wound the clock and set out the milk jars. As he turned to enter the house, something soft rubbed against his leg. He looked down and saw a beautiful black cat. He liked cats, particularly black ones, but Letty could not bear to have one in the house. He stooped to stroke the glossy fur and the cat purred. He could not resist the impulse to open the screen door and let the cat enter with him.

By the time Bob had fed the stranger, made a bed for it and fastened the windows it was growing late. It was silent upstairs. Letty must be asleep. He looked at the cat, then thought of the butter. He went swiftly to the icebox, brought out a pat of butter, clicked off the lights and went silently up the stairs.

Letty was sleeping peacefully. She made a perfect picture of repose, and he gazed, well satisfied that everything was working out as he wished. The night was so warm that she had thrust her feet out from the thin covering, and Bob stooped to apply the butter.

Now Letty had peculiarly sensitive feet. As Bob plastered the butter he touched a sensitive nerve. Letty gave a powerful kick, landing on Bob's right eye. He gave a howl of pain; while Letty, warned over to a more comfortable position. She would not wake up; she was a heavy sleeper, as he knew from experience.

Hours later, or so it seemed, Letty awoke. There at her feet was a horrible black creature, licking her toes. She could not move; she felt petrified as the terrible animal glared and looked ready to spring if she uttered a cry to Bob.

After an eternity of waiting, the animal jumped off the bed and slunk away.

"Bob," she called, in her weakest voice. "Bob, dear, wake up; I'm so frightened."

Bob was in no comforting mood, but he got out of bed and turned on the lights. Letty screamed when she saw him.

"Look at your eye. It is all black. Such a night I've had. What did you do to your eye?"

Bob refused to say what he did. She sat up with the air of a tragedy queen.

"There was some terrible black animal sitting on my feet most of the night. Don't think I'm crazy, Bob; he really did. I shall make one resolution for the future. Never again will I be early to bed for me; and as for these 'at home nights,' we had better make them far apart."

THE SANDMAN STORY

FOX GETS WORST OF IT

MR. FOX was not very fond of cherries, but he thought such fine ones as he saw on the tree under which he stood were too nice to be passed by, but Mr. Fox was not nimble at climbing; in fact, he did not know how to climb.

While he stood looking up at the cherries along came Mr. Coon, who would as soon travel through the wood by jumping from tree to tree as to walk on the ground.

"What are you looking at, Mr. Fox, sour grapes?" he asked.

Mr. Fox is somewhat touchy on that subject, but he knew if he got those nice cherries he would need the help of Mr. Coon, so he smothered his anger.

He Threw Down the Cherries.

and said smilingly: "No, not grapes this time, Mr. Coon, but fine big cherries."

"I, of course, cannot climb, but you are such an expert that it will be no trouble for you to run up and pick some for me."

Mr. Coon, being a good-natured fellow, said he would, and thinking also that he might find a nest of bees or wasps at the same time, for though he did not mind eating cherries he was very fond of the other things.

He threw down the cherries, and when Mr. Fox had enough he decided that he would punish Mr. Coon for mentioning those sour grapes.

The fact that Mr. Coon had been obliging and picked the cherries for him did not matter at all to ungrateful Mr. Fox.

He saw a limb that was very slender and at the end hung two very large red cherries. By asking Mr. Coon to get those cherries he was sure he would fall to the ground, for the limb would be certain to snap.

Under the tree was a big flat stone, and while Mr. Coon wears a thick coat, if he struck on a rock he would be sure to feel it, and then he will know how it hurts me when he mentions those sour grapes," he mused to himself, "for when he lands I will just mention the fact to him before I run off home."

Mr. Fox pointed to the big cherries, but he did not see what was happening and could run the nest was on the ground and the angry wasps were flying about.

Mr. Coon came down the tree, but it was Mr. Fox the wasps blamed for destroying their home, and after him they went.

He ran for the river to get rid of his tormentors, and had to swim under water part of the way, for angry wasps will chase an enemy a long distance.

"Now, I wonder if he did that on purpose," thought Mr. Fox. "Did he think I was trying to get him on that little limb of the tree so he would fall and knock down the wasp nest to pay me for trying to play that trick, or did he really want the nest?"

Mr. Fox's thoughts were so tangled up thinking about it that he finally gave it up and decided that the sour grape story did not hurt him nearly as much as did the sting of those angry wasps.

But still he did wonder about Mr. Coon, if he really did want that wasp nest, but he never found out.

close yesterday and office opening this morning, how little you ate as a result of the heat and how much tea you have had to consume, just makes other people think all the more about the heat and it doesn't help you at all.

You may not be able to help looking hot, but you don't have to look untidy as a result of the heat. It is better to wear a thin suit than to wear a heavier one in various stages of removal; better for the young woman in the office to wear a short-sleeved open-necked blouse than another sort of blouse with the collar and sleeves tucked away.

A great deal more leniency is allowed men nowadays in warm weather. There are still some business offices where the men are not allowed to remove their coats in office hours, but these are the exceptions. If we do have to pass through periods of almost tropical heat we should be allowed to adopt somewhat the costume of other civilized folk in tropical climes. Hence the palm beach suit for men, soft comfortable collars and light-weight suits are no longer looked upon as unsuitable or friskish in most of our cities.

But whatever else you do, remember that the chances are that you are made no more comfortable than the others with whom you associate. If you grumble more it means that you have less self-control; it means that you are not playing the game as well as you should and also, moreover, that you are making the task of getting through the warm weather, which at worst is of short duration, all the harder for yourself and for those around you.

YOUR HAND How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

THE HAND OF A SINGER

MANY good authorities on palmistry hold that a singer should have a stiff hand and pointed fingers. The mounts of Venus, Luna, Saturn and Apollo should be strong, to show, respectively, melody, harmony, melody and harmony.

By some it is held that the successful singer's hand shows always a good line of Apollo, which runs up the center of the hand into the finger of Apollo, the third or ring finger. The vocalist should always have the finger of Apollo terminating in a point.

Success in seeking and holding public favor is indicated by a line of fortune rising from the bracelet, and running to the mount of Saturn, at the base of the little finger.

Self-confidence is also required by the man or woman who must appear before the public, and this is indicated by separation of the line of life and that of the head. A line rising from the line of life to the finger of Jupiter, the forefinger, means ambition.

HOT WEATHER HABITS

IS IT not true that our civilized manners are tested in warm weather, and that there is a strong temptation to forget some of the little refinements of life that we possess just because we are civilized?

But the truth of the matter is that the very thing that makes warm weather endurable in office, store or home is the exertion on the part of the individuals to keep up their standard of good manners, and to remember that though the thermometer stands at ninety, more or less, they are civilized none the less.

Considerable self-control needs to be exerted. In the first place don't tell people just how warm you feel. Having exchanged a perfunctory comment or so about the heat, let the weather let it go at that. To tell your associates just how the thermometer stood in your bedroom last night, how many baths you took between office closing yesterday and office opening this morning, how little you ate as a result of the heat and how much tea you have had to consume, just makes other people think all the more about the heat and it doesn't help you at all.

You may not be able to help looking hot, but you don't have to look untidy as a result of the heat. It is better to wear a thin suit than to wear a heavier one in various stages of removal; better for the young woman in the office to wear a short-sleeved open-necked blouse than another sort of blouse with the collar and sleeves tucked away.

A great deal more leniency is allowed men nowadays in warm weather. There are still some business offices where the men are not allowed to remove their coats in office hours, but these are the exceptions. If we do have to pass through periods of almost tropical heat we should be allowed to adopt somewhat the costume of other civilized folk in tropical climes. Hence the palm beach suit for men, soft comfortable collars and light-weight suits are no longer looked upon as unsuitable or friskish in most of our cities.

But whatever else you do, remember that the chances are that you are made no more comfortable than the others with whom you associate. If you grumble more it means that you have less self-control; it means that you are not playing the game as well as you should and also, moreover, that you are making the task of getting through the warm weather, which at worst is of short duration, all the harder for yourself and for those around you.

THE HAND OF A SINGER

MANY good authorities on palmistry hold that a singer should have a stiff hand and pointed fingers. The mounts of Venus, Luna, Saturn and Apollo should be strong, to show, respectively, melody, harmony, melody and harmony.

By some it is held that the successful singer's hand shows always a good line of Apollo, which runs up the center of the hand into the finger of Apollo, the third or ring finger. The vocalist should always have the finger of Apollo terminating in a point.

Success in seeking and holding public favor is indicated by a line of fortune rising from the bracelet, and running to the mount of Saturn, at the base of the little finger.

Self-confidence is also required by the man or woman who must appear before the public, and this is indicated by separation of the line of life and that of the head. A line rising from the line of life to the finger of Jupiter, the forefinger, means ambition.

POSES AS BOY

EIGHT YEARS

Florence Gray of Philadelphia

Fought, Swaggered and Made Love to Girls.

LED GANG OF TOUGHS

Divided Her Time Between Driving Truck, Fighting and Jail Sentences

—Sex Revealed by Fight With Gangster.

Philadelphia.—Florence Gray, known for the last eight years as "Battling Kid" McConnell, and "Whistling Jack," is an out-and-out, self-confessed seeker of publicity in order that she may enter the "movies" and thus gratify a life-long ambition. For eight years she has masqueraded in man's clothing and was "as tough as they make them."

When Charlie Weaver, a member of her "gang," broke her nose during a fight, he didn't dream that he was "splitting the beans" for Florence. But when, on her complaint, Weaver was arrested, Florence was taken to the police station and there her sex was discovered, although it had been known to some police officials and Justice Brown for the last two years.

"Skirts for Life."

Left motherless soon after her birth, Florence went to live with her grandfather, James Gray, who, she claims, is a retired lawyer. Because he found it hard to travel around with a little girl he dressed her in boy's clothing. She liked them so well she has worn them ever since, until Judge Brown sentenced her to "skirts for life." She is now twenty-one years old.

As John McConnell she was the leader of the "iron gang," and spent her spare time in pool rooms, or in jail, as she was sent there frequently for fighting. In fact, she gained a reputation as a boxer, gave exhibition bouts, and enjoyed many fist battles in which she was usually victorious.

John McConnell could break hearts as well as jaws. Three times she wooed and won the flowers of the tenderloin district, each time to break the engagement. She was engaged "for keeps" to twenty-one-year-old Lettie Harrison when the demagogue came and shattered her last romance. Lettie bemoans the loss of her lover, but has been consoled by the sale of her photographs to various papers, a practice which has also netted "Jack" considerable money.

Judge Kept Secret.

Judge Brown was holding court two years ago when a woman appeared and charged "John McConnell" with being the father of a child recently born to her young daughter. She said the girl and "John" had been keeping company and that the pair had been away on "several over-night trips."

Honor War Dead of All Nations

Sculptor Outlines Most Pretentious Tribute of Modern Times to Soldiers of World War.

MUSEUM AND TEMPLE IN ONE

In Conception It Can Be Compared Only to the Wonderful Basilica of Imperial Rome—Is Leading Sculptor.

Rome.—An exhibition of Antonio Sciorlino's "Monument of the Nations" will be opened in Rome in the fall, and the model, as well as thousands of sketches and plans, is to be on view in his studio at the British academy. This monument is one of the most pretentious ever planned in modern times. In conception it can be compared only to the wonderful basilica of Imperial Rome.

It was in 1917 that Professor Sciorlino, pondering over the war in which millions of soldiers were killed, planned a monument which would be a fitting one for the heroic dead, as well as a museum and temple combined. His original idea was that it should be an international monument, one which could be erected on some historic spot, on a battlefield. He suggested to many friends that, while the bones scattered over many battlefields could be interred in the walls of the crypt, one central tomb should be a memorial for all, whether private or officers. On the sketches which he made in 1917 he wrote: "Plans for a monument to an unknown soldier and sailor." It was his idea that millions should consider that tomb the resting place of their own lost ones.

For Noted Dead.

The monument is a building which will consist of three galleries, a library and a museum. In the first gallery there will be 300 instrumental percussion, which will be heard for miles around; in the second, 300 bells, which will peal on commemorative days, while in the central hall there will be an organ, to be played on solemn occasions. In whatever country it is erected, it would be not only a monument to the memory of the fallen soldiers, but also a kind of Westminster Abbey, where men of note would be buried.

Antonio Sciorlino, who occupies the post of director of arts at the British academy in Rome, is a man of great talent and is considered by many art critics to be the leading British sculptor of today. He studies not only in Rome, but also in Paris.

Though still a young man (he is thirty-nine years old) he has accomplished much. He works quickly, modeling with a rapidity which is contrary to the custom of many modern sculptors. His quickest bit of work was a mask made when he was in Paris ten or twelve years ago while visiting a friend's studio. It happened to be his last day in Paris and he had culled in to say good-by to a fellow sculptor. He had only twenty minutes to spare. Seated in a corner, in an easy chair, was Leo Textorius, the American pianist, who had often asked Sciorlino to make a model of his head. Sciorlino took up a piece of clay and in little more than fifteen minutes had modeled a mask of the pianist.

This mask was hanging in the American artist's studio when Rodin paid a visit there. Rodin was enthusiastic at the originality of the work.

The winning of the competition in 1914, offered by the Luna committee of Kieff, was not only a personal, but an international success, as 300 sculptors of all nations competed for five years. Three times Sciorlino competed and won money prizes. When in 1914 he won again it was decided to give him the order for the statue. The decision of the committee caused great indignation throughout Russia.

Paid $20 to Hear Dog Bark Over the Telephone

An American business man left his table in Muldoon's restaurant, in Havana, Cuba, and walked to the telephone. "Give me Murray Hill, New York City," said the party who answers that I wish to speak to my building," he said. After a brief interval guests at a nearby table heard a faint "woof, woof" coming from the receiver. The charge was $20. "Doggone," growled the man. "That's $10 a woof."

The committee then decided to hold a referendum. All the prominent men and women of Russia were asked to view the model and decide whether the Russian models were equal to that of the British sculptor. They unanimously held that the statue chosen was best of all the other 209. This referendum was taken carefully. The written opinions were placed in sealed envelopes, in a sealed box and only opened after all had finished voting.

The occupation of the city in Moscow by the Bolsheviks prevented the statue ever being erected and the final award was never given to the sculptor. Now an effort is being made by the committee to collect subscription for the purpose of erecting the statue.

SOMETHING ABOUT RELISHES

It is a mistake to taboo pickles and relishes from the menu entirely because they are supposed to be unhealthful.

A moderate use of such things adds to the palatable foods and relieves monotony.

The use of alum for pickling is both unnecessary and injurious and never use a metal spoon in any vinegar solution—even a few minutes will spoil the flavor and will prove harmful and even dangerous. A wooden spoon or an agate one is best, though the agate if tapped on the side of the kettle is apt to chip off and that, too, is unsafe.

Food to be pickled loses its crispness if scalded and as that is the chief charm of a good pickle it should be avoided.

Since vinegar and spices and salt are the important ingredients to use in pickling it is wise to choose the best. Many an otherwise delicious combination has been ruined by poor or badly flavored vinegar and flippant spices. It pays, even if at a greater cost, to buy a standard and reliable article.

For those who like a snappy cucumber pickle try these: Into a large jar put a cupful of salt, a half-cupful each of sugar and mustard and a quart of vinegar. Drop the well-washed cucumbers into the vinegar daily as they are picked, keeping them covered with the vinegar. Seal in jars and they will keep a year, crisp and good-flavored. A bag of spices and an onion may be used for variety.

Ripe Cucumber Pickles.—Cut the ripe cucumbers in halves lengthwise. Cover with salted water and heat gradually, then let stand for an hour or two. Remove and chill in ice water. Make a syrup by boiling two pounds of sugar, one pint of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls each of whole cloves and cinnamon tied in a cloth. Add the cucumbers and cook ten minutes, remove the cucumbers to a jar and pour over the boiling hot sirup. Boil the sirup for three successive mornings.

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys Lie in three words—health, peace and competence.

SOME BREAKFAST MEATS

For variety the following dishes will be liked by the family for some breakfasts:

Corn Beef Hash.—Take one part chopped corn beef and two parts of the vegetables left from the boiled dinner, season with grated onion; pepper and salt if needed, a little butter and chopped green pepper. Heat thoroughly and serve the hash spread on buttered toast; slip a poached egg on each piece, sprinkle with salt and pepper and minced parsley.

Kidney Bacon Rolls.—Those who like kidneys will enjoy this dish: Season a cupful of bread crumbs with grated onion, salt, pepper and minced parsley. Moisten with one egg well beaten. Spread the crumb mixture over thin slices of bacon and wrap each slice of bacon around a small kidney. Fasten with toothpicks, put in a baking pan and bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp. Remove the skewers and serve on a hot plate garnished with parsley.

Chop-Chop.—Two quarts of small green tomatoes, twelve small cucumbers, two quarts of string beans, three red peppers, one cauliflower, two bunches of celery, one pint of small onions, one-fourth pound of mustard seed, two ounces of turmeric, one-half ounce each of allspice, pepper and cloves. Chop the vegetables, cover with one-fourth cupful of salt to a quart of water, let stand twenty-four hours, then drain. Heat the vinegar and spices and when boiling add the vegetables and cook until soft. Seal in bottles or jars.

Mixed Veal and Eggs.—Chop cold cooked veal very fine, add hard cooked eggs cut fine, one to each cupful of meat. Relent in hot water, add melted butter, or cream sauce, a bit of green pepper, parsley and grated onion, pimento or capers finely minced for flavoring. Other meats may be prepared in the same way.

Cattle Brains.—Soak the brains in cold water, parboil, remove the waste tissue, throw into cold water, drain and place in the ice chest. Rub with melted butter, dip in egg and crumbs and fry in a little butter, or they may be broiled. Serve with a cream sauce or with a sauce of melted butter and minced parsley.

Ham Toast.—Take one-half cupful of minced ham, half a teaspoonful of anchovy paste, a bit of cayenne and pounded mace. Take one-half cupful of milk and an egg well beaten, stir until thick, over the fire, then spread thinly on dry buttered toast. If desired a poached egg may be placed on each slice.

Hope for the millions of unfortunate men and women who are victims of stomach trouble is sounded by William Hoylen, of 16 Spring St., Bristol, Conn. Mr. Hoylen was a victim of stomach trouble in its worst form, but was completely restored to health by taking Tanlac. He says:

"For fifteen years I had attacks of stomach trouble, and had been in bed for three weeks when I got Tanlac. But three bottles built me up fifteen pounds, and made a well man of me. I am now eating steak and onions, and feel just fine in every way."

Undigested food ferments in the stomach and soon the entire system is filled with poisons. Tanlac was designed to restore the stomach to a healthy condition and build up the whole body. Millions everywhere have acclaimed its wonderful power. Get a bottle today.

AT LEAST GUILTY OF LYING

Truly Clergyman Had Refrained From Blasphemy, but He Had Sinned in Another Direction.

A clergyman who years ago settled in Massachusetts once reproved a workman for swearing while he was plowing a new field.

"Swear!" said the man, "I guess you'd swear."

Whereupon the preacher took the plow and hurried after it, indignantly denying the charge. "Then, as the field became more impassable, he began panting:

"I never saw the like! I never saw the like!" When he had gone once round the field he stopped, breathless, and added:

"There, you see I didn't find it necessary to swear."

"No," said the other, "but you've told more'n 50 lies. You said you never did see the like, and you saw it all the time I was plowing."

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I can express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. Youthful Fijian Proved Anew That Necessity is the Father of Invention.

A traveler from Fiji in the old days reports that at times in the past when the game was first introduced there the Fijians used to get waves of cricket madness, and in some outlying villages—where it was not so readily quelled by law—a match would be kept up for weeks on end. Incidentally, they wore their pads strapped on their naked, bootless legs with a very ludicrous effect. But evidently the Fijians have no sense of the ludicrous, for our traveler further reports: "Another distinguishing mark that rather amused me once upon country was when my house boy, Euan, came in one day with his hair cut away from one side of his head, looking like a somewhat weird parting, for the remainder stood up as usual like a bass broom with bristles five inches long. I asked him what on earth he had been doing and he replied: 'Sir, I am now a member of the Lomaloma "A" team, and we have agreed to cut our hair like this, as the store cannot get 11 shades all the same color.'"—London Tit-Bits.

He might have been rich fifteen years ago, but a Belgian who purchased a bond in 1903 hadn't applied for the list of numbers drawn in state lotteries in 1907.

A poor man from the country happened to be in Antwerp for the first time for many years, entered the offices of the Calais Communale to see if the bond which he had taken out in the loan of 1903 had won a prize in the yearly lottery. He thought that perhaps he had won 110 francs in this year's draw. After waiting impatiently while the cashier searched the records he was informed that his number had been drawn in 1907, and that he was entitled to 3,000 francs of 200,000 francs ($40,000 at normal exchange rates).

BISO WILL HAVE TO BE DEPORTED

Big Buffalo Will Be Sent to Montevideo, Uruguay.

Favorite of Visitors to Wichita National Forest Doomed to Exile Because Southern Neighbor Wants Specimen.

Washington.—Biso is unhappy! He is to be deported, thrust from the land of his birth, torn from his wives and children and doomed to live in exile for the rest of his days.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has decreed that he must go; the forest service has arranged his transport, and Biso is inconsolable.

Biso is the big buffalo bull that for 15 years has been the admiration of visitors to the Wichita national forest and game refuge in Oklahoma. The city of Montevideo, Uruguay, has asked that its zoological garden be supplied with an American bison and the forest service men who have charge of the buffalo on the Wichita say that Biso will be an excellent representative of this typical North American species whose once mighty herds roamed the great plains from Mexico to northern Canada.

In 1907 Biso was "planted" in the Wichita national forest and have since increased to over 150 head. This herd promises to maintain the type and stamina of the original bison, since the animals are kept at all times under natural conditions. They subsist entirely on wild grasses and live within so large an inclosure that they are under practically no restraint.

So Biso has been well content and is reluctant to leave. Yet many of the younger buffalo bulls are casting covetous glances at the old fellow. It would be very pleasant, they think, to doze idly beneath a palm tree and be served with fresh cut grasses or have their wrinkled noses patted by some dark-haired sonoria.

But Biso has his doubts.

GO TO THE LIMIT IN MOURNING

Death of Prominent Personage in Kaffirland is a Serious Matter for Those Left Alive.

The body of a Kaffir child is washed before being buried, but otherwise the ceremony is of the simplest character, the father himself digging the grave, while the mother, and perhaps another relative or two, look on.

The burial of a chief, or of his near relative, is celebrated with great pomp and is accompanied by the slaughter of oxen and even of men. Very often a number of the best-looking young girls in the tribe are buried alive in the grave with the deceased magnate.

In the case of Muanila, the mother of the dead King Tchake, a guard of twelve thousand men were stationed over the grave for a whole year, and were maintained by the good-will of the tribesmen. The pyres on this occasion were horrible, and so wild did the people become that it was proposed that all who had been present at her funeral should be slaughtered, and that the earth should be compelled to join in the general mourning by being allowed to lie waste for a whole year. All the children born within one year after her decease, and their parents as well, were executed.

Owls and rats in a mine mean even more than rats aboard ship. So long as the owls sit about silently and the rats fraternize, steel ladders and dynamite are not needed. But when the owls begin to screech and the rats to scurry, the miners are quick to heed the portents. They believe that a cave-in would have infallibly occurred had they not got out just in the nick of time. Meanwhile the operating company can do nothing more sensible than smilingly accept the loss incident to a temporary shut-down as one of the unpreventable incidents of the mining game.

"Well," said the boy, "the way I come to get in here first this mornin' was that I licked the twenty-four other boys who was ahead of me."

NEW POWER LIFEBOAT

A new motor lifeboat, said to be the largest and most powerful craft of the kind afloat, has been launched for the British Royal National Lifeboat Institution. It is called the Barnett twin screw. Practically unsinkable, the Barnett twin screw has as many water-tight compartments as a modern battle cruiser. Her radius of action is anything up to 150 miles. She carries a life-saving net, a line-throwing gun and a searchlight. Her engines are two of the new six-cylinder 75-horsepower motors, and it is said they will continue working even when completely submerged.

CONFESSION

A diplomat at a dinner in Washington said to the season's belle: "You ravish all hearts. You make a fresh conquest every week."

"True," she replied, then added with a sigh—"and I'd give all my slaves for one master."—Boston Transcript.

A Worthy Practice Fallen Into Desuetude

Wittingly or unwittingly our fathers built up our national character by teaching that each must be a law unto himself. The American colonist separated by miles from his nearest neighbor and hundreds of miles from any seat of government was forced to make an every day practical use of this principle. In the depths of the woods, alone on the prairie, each had to meet every situation without advice or assistance. Not only did he have to cure his ailments, but he must also be a law unto himself in such a manner as to escape accident and disease. He learned the ways of ferocious animals; he figured on the direction of a falling tree; he knew better than to camp in the dry channel of a stream which might before morning be the channel of a cloudburst; he broke his trails over the high peaks, lest along the beds of streams he might be ambuscaded from the hills. This self reliance produced a thoughtful, prudent body of citizens who founded a government which, so far, has endured.

It is during the last half century that a 'crowd of reformers have swarmed upon us—people who have discarded the old shibboleth for one that reads, 'I am my brother's keeper.' Well intentioned and without doubt of their own abilities, they have become the busiest bees in the hive. The direction in which the tree will fall, onto the cabin or across the clearing is nothing to them. Nor are they satisfied by girdling the trunk, thus making way for the sunshine.

Looking at it from a national standpoint, after they have decided—for instance, that neither Tom, Dick nor Harry shall drink anything but water, pure water, from the spring close by in the United States, they immediately propose to become a law unto all the peoples of the world. It would be idle to say to them that commerce will be interrupted; that ports north and ports south of us will be used to the detriment of our own shipping centers. Genuine fanatics, they can not be brought to comprehend that this present moment is one of the most critical in the world's history. Any act, the slightest or the most grave, which exacerbates one nation against the other, amounts to an offense against humanity.

That President Harding has thrown over this questionable proceeding, the aegis of authority is to be regretted.

DIG DEEP TO IRRIGATE

The Cape Town correspondent of the London Times says the story of 30 months' strenuous labor by two brothers to bring water from the Great Fish river to their farm in the Somerset East district is one of the farming romances of South Africa.

The brothers, who are Dutch and formerly were Rand miners, pierced, without government or other professional help, a tunnel 1,550 feet long, 5 feet high and 7 feet wide through a solid rock ridge which cut off the farm from the river. When the workers approached each other from opposite ends of the tunnel, there was a discrepancy of only a few inches.

The brothers also built a 120-foot weir across the river and a 36-inch siphon 200 feet long through the river. The scheme will irrigate 5,000 acres of rich soil.

It was in THE TERMINAL.

HAVE MUCH FAITH IN FOSSILS

Chinamen Regard Them as of Great Efficacy in Practically All Kinds of Illness.

Fossils of all sorts have a high commercial value to the Chinese. They are called "dragon bones," and when powdered, dissolved in acid and mixed with a liberal quantity of native superstition, are of undoubted efficacy as a medicine for every kind of illness, from rheumatism to gunshot wounds. The apothecary shops naturally carry on a considerable trade in fossils, and if a Chinese finds a fossil-bearing locality, he guards it as if it were a gold mine. Foreigners find it tedious and often impossible to obtain permission to examine some of the long-worked beds that for centuries have been bequeathed by one generation to another. Belief in feng-shui, "spirits of the earth, wind and water," which guard all burial places in China, is another native obstacle to scientific work. Since in many thickly settled regions it is rather difficult to find a spot so far away from a grave site that feng-shui is inoperative, the fossil hunter must be extremely cautious in digging without having first obtained the consent of the nearest villagers.

IN SEARCH OF INFORMATION

Reporter Asked What Might Be Called a Leading Question Regarding Clergyman's Demise.

Reporters get their education by varied means, and some of their adventures when breaking into the game are notable. A wire came from an eastern city a few nights ago reporting the death of a resident of this city. The only similar name the new reporter could find was that of a minister, well and favorably known, and he called up on the telephone. Not knowing how to put the question, the reporter, when a man answered, asked who it was, and, finding that it was the person he wanted, then asked:

"Are you dead?"
Another young man, just breaking into the game, called up the home of a negro minister for information about the funeral.

"My husband is not at home," was the answer.
"Will he come home at noon for dinner?" the reporter then asked.
"We don't have dinner at noon; we have lunch."

"Oh!" said the reporter.—Portland Oregonian.

During the first six months of this year applications for patents in the United States numbered 45,000, a figure in excess of all previous records.

Pit Power Plant No. 4 with capacity of 93,000 horsepower, just completed at a cost of $6,500,000.

How this Company is meeting the Demand for Power

Mr. Wise, the rancher, keeps no more horses than he needs. He knows that too many horses are an expense. So, he keeps enough teams to do his work, with an extra horse or two for emergencies.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is keeping in step with the demand for power in much the same common sense manner.

To develop power too greatly in excess of the demand would be like keeping too many idle horses in the stable.

On the other hand, this Company is vested with a great responsibility. It must not only supply existing demands for power, but also develop a sufficient surplus to care for emergencies. At the same time, power development must be kept far enough in advance of present requirements to encourage the upbuilding of this section in other directions.

Owing to the completion of the Pit Power Plant No. 1, with its 93,000 horsepower capacity, and because of other contributing factors, the P G and E is today equipped to serve "Superior" California with much more power than is being used at the present time.

The Company will continue to develop the Pit River Project to the end that 600,000 horsepower will eventually be generated in that one district alone. But in the meanwhile more people, more manufacturing, more developments of all kinds must be attracted to make practical use of power.
